

Nazri Mustaffa
Universiti Sains Malaysia
Malaysia

Nazri Mustaffa graduated from the University of Adelaide in 2000. Following this he did his physician training in Universiti Sains Malaysia, obtaining his MMed (Internal Medicine) certification in 2007. After several years of being a medical lecturer, he continued his sub-specialty training and received his National Specialist Registration (Gastroenterology) in 2013, having done fellowship attachments at University Malaya in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia as well as Concord Repatriation General Hospital in Sydney, Australia. He recently obtained his PhD at the Centenary Institute in Sydney, Australia which focused on the immunology of inflammatory bowel disease. He is currently a senior medical lecturer at the Medical Department, School of Medical Sciences in Universiti Sains Malaysia as well as a practising gastroenterologist and physician.